

WHEAT HARVEST HAS BEGUN

Warm Sunny Weather Provides Ideal Harvesting Conditions. Heading and Weaving Started—Combines Will be in Operation Tomorrow.

Wheat cutting has started in the Bessano and other neighboring districts and will be in full swing by the end of the week or early next week.

P. Powell and Mr. Beringer are cutting with the header. It is understood that considerably crop will be cut with the header this year in order to save the straw for feed.

Farmers are getting their combine harvesters in good running shape for harvest operations. E. F. Maurer plans to start his machine tomorrow, Friday, and others are ready to commence work.

Swathing is proceeding in the Gem district preparatory to threshing later with the combine. The Canada thistle has given a lot of trouble in Gem district this year. Many fields are badly infested with this weed, and it is said the yield of grain is considerably reduced as a result.

235,000,000 BUSHEL MAY BE HARVESTED THIS FALL

Western Canada will reap a harvest of wheat between 235,000,000 and 250,000,000 bushels, it is thought, under normal conditions. The weather conditions remain normal until completion of harvesting, it was stated in the weekly crop survey of the Prairie Grain Company, issued Monday evening.

Harvesting operations are general in Manitoba and will be general in Saskatchewan about August 16. Alberta is slightly later, and it is not expected that harvesting in the foothills province will be in full swing until August 19.

Western crops dropped slightly in average conditions during the week, the report stated. The weighted average condition for the three Prairie provinces was 52 per cent—compared with 54 per cent for the week previous.

The average condition in Alberta was 71 per cent; Saskatchewan, 42 per cent; and Manitoba, 52 per cent. Some rust infection and slight damage from grasshoppers was reported during the period, but no serious damage has yet resulted.

POOL PAYMENT INCREASED TO THIRTYFIVE CTS

Prime Minister Announces New Policy for Handling Of Wheat's Crop

OTTAWA, August 7.—A guarantee against panic conditions, an initial payment of 36 cents per bushel to the grain growers, and operation of the elevators of the western wheat pools and the terminals the same as privately owned enterprises are operated, are announced in an official statement by the prime minister this afternoon.

The statement reflects the outcome of the conference during the week between the representatives of the provincial governments, the wheat pool and the banks, along with John I. MacFarland, director of the selling organization. It is understood that Mr. MacFarland's services will be available, at least until the season is over.

Those who wish to market their grain on the pool principle are distinguished from the ordinary trading, may do so.

The prime minister's statement is as follows:

The wheat pools of the three western provinces, which own nearly 1,500 country elevators, as well as terminals at Vancouver and Port Arthur, will operate as privately owned enterprises. They will have ample working capital, and the provinces will not be called upon to guarantee their operations.

"As a substantial number of producers desire to market their grain on the pool principle, the elevators operated by the pools in the several provinces will afford to such producers an opportunity to have their grain dealt with by the operation of a voluntary pool. The elevators will make to such producers an initial payment of 36 cents per bushel on the same basis as to quality and point of delivery as in previous years."

"The Dominion government will take whatever action may be necessary to insure the orderly marketing of the crop of the year. Panic conditions will not be permitted to control the prices obtaining for this year's western grain crop."

It should be noted that the bonus of five cents a bushel to be paid by the Federal Government is extra, above the 36 cent initial pool payment.

Claims Strip Farming Stops Soil Drifting

Strip farming, as practised by the grain growers in the Nisqually and Barons districts in the southern part of the province, prevents soil drifting and can be successfully applied to the Bessano, Maplewood, and Husar districts, believes E. F. Maurer, prominent Bessano farmer.

Mr. Maurer is the most successful big scale farmer in this district, and grows more than a thousand acres of wheat every year on his farm two miles northwest of Bessano.

In company with H. H. Homan, of Calgary, who has extensive farming interests in the Bessano and Crowfoot districts, Mr. Maurer made a tour of the Nisqually and Barons districts last Sunday.

He saw the strip farming, talked with the farmers, and was convinced of the benefits which result from this method of cultivation.

So confident is he of the advantages of strip farming that he returned to Bessano a complete convert and will start at once to use this system.

Messrs. Hargrove, Hove, and Kamp have already begun the strip method of cropping, and it is expected that others will follow.

Strip farming is simple, and entails but little more work than ordinary methods of cultivation. The field is plowed in strips running north and south. Each strip is 30 rods wide. The crop is sown on alternate strips. This the field has a 30 rod strip of wheat, a 30 rod strip of summer fallow, another 30 rod strip of wheat, and so on.

Many Advantages
The advantages of strip farming, as outlined by Mr. Maurer, are numerous. It prevents soil drifting, and for this reason was first adopted by the farmers of the south. It enables proper cultivation of the summer fallow between the strips of crop, as the farmer has no fear of his soil drifting because of being too finely pulverized. By thorough cultivation the weeds are kept down, thus conserving the soil.

ALBERTA RELIEF PLANS PREPARED

Province Recommends Railway Road-building and National Parks Road-work as Suitable Work Projects

Edmonton.—Alberta is ready to embark upon a relief program at a day's notice and has submitted a complete memorandum on the subject to the Dominion Government.

While it is hoped and expected that the Dominion will sponsor a comprehensive program, no definite plans have as yet been disclosed, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee, on his return from Ottawa, where he discussed the problem with Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor.

For the drought-stricken areas of the province the approval of the federal government has been given to road projects as relief work, of which the details are being worked out by the provincial authorities.

Relieving Roads
The premier is hopeful that definite announcements will be forthcoming at an early date.

Ballasting on railways and road-work in the National Parks have been strongly recommended by Alberta as a relief work project.

Now that the Dominion house has adjourned, said the premier, the cabinet was concentrating on the practical policies to be put in effect with respect to unemployment relief.

Beyond his hopes for an early announcement of plans, Premier Brownlee did not feel disposed to comment on what the policies might include.

Figures sought
Request for figures on the number of registered unemployed, estimates of transients and the names of localities where distress exists, was received on Monday by Premier J. E. Brownlee from Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor.

Copies of the wire have been communicated to the mayors of the Alberta cities.

The government has delegated Walter Hamilton, Provincial Labor Commissioner, to collect all necessary material and at the same time to get in touch with rural municipalities to become familiar with the situation there.

It is expected that all information desired will be forwarded out within 24 hours.

sewing the moisture for next year's crop. Strip farming means the summerfallowing of half the land every year, and this is in accordance with the best farming methods. Farmers in the Nisqually district claim an increase in yield of from 5 to 8 bushels an acre by reason of strip farming; due to elimination of weeds, prevention of soil drifting, and conservation of moisture.

Costs 5 per cent more
Strip farmers' estimate it costs about 5 per cent more to strip farm than to farm in the ordinary way. The extra cost is due to extra time required in moving from one strip to another, taking extra care to run the line straight, and extra round with seeder or with harvesting machine to complete narrow margins left at one side of the strips. The 5 per cent additional cost, however, is more than offset by the advantages gained.

Salvation of the South
Mr. Maurer believes that strip farming had proved the salvation of the Nisqually and Barons districts. Eight years ago farmers there were ruined by soil drifting. Crops were almost completely destroyed; fences were covered up by heaps of soil blown off the fields, and in some cases even buildings were partly covered. Strip farming was introduced, and since that time there has been no more trouble with soil drifting.

Believes Problem Solved
Bessano, Maplewood, and Husar districts, particularly the latter two, have suffered heavy losses from soil drifting the last two years. Last year it was bad, and this year the condition is far worse. Next year the drifting problem may be still more serious. Mr. Maurer after seeing strip farming in the southern districts and learning what it has done to benefit conditions there, is confident that it will be of great benefit to this part of the province.

HONORS EVEN IN TWO GAMES

Strathmore and Bessano Win Game Each in Double Header Here Last Sunday

For the second time within a week the Bessano Bears, administered defeat to the crack Strathmore base ball team in a double header program played here last Sunday afternoon, Aug. 8. It was only the third defeat the visitors had suffered this season, they having won 10 games out of 22 played. In the double header at Strathmore a week previous Strathmore won the first game and Bessano the second, and a similar result was the outcome of last Sunday's games. Strathmore won the first game 5-3, and the Bears took the second 5-2.

First Game
The first game was a seven innings affair. Strathmore took an early lead, scoring one in the second and three in the third off the fielders' reach. The Bears took three runs off a total of six hits in the game. Connelly pitched a nice game for Bessano, and J. Crellin, for Strathmore, made a good game of it.

Strathmore: 0 1 3 0 0 2 0 6

Second Game
The Bears started off strong in the second game by Leonard, Simpson, Summerville, Cameron, and Hordbourne. Three more runs were brought in in the second stanza by Burrows, Butler, and Down, when all three hit and were helped out by Summerville and Cameron. In both these innings errors in the Strathmore infield enabled the Bears to score. The visitors staged a last inning rally that netted them three runs when the Bears were leading 6-2. It looked as though they had a chance to tie the score, but Palmer, who was going strong in the second stanza, retired the last man with a strikeout.

Bessano: Simpson; ex Leonard 2; Ralph Burrows 2; Summerville 3; Cameron 1; Hordbourne 4; LePage 1; Palmer 1; Down 1; Connelly pitched the first game and Palmer the second.

A good game crowd turned out to see both games.

MacGregor, captain for Strathmore, attempted to break up the second game in the fourth inning when he disputed the decision of the base umpire on a play at second base.

MacGregor was sent to the bench and E. Giroux caught the remainder of the game.

In the second game J. Crellin slipped out a home run in the 4th with the bases empty.

BEARCATS DIVIDE FIRST MONEY AT BROOKS TOURNEY

CUTWORM MENACE FOR NEXT YEAR

By H. G. L. Stronge

Grave warnings are again being issued by Entomologists, as to the possibility of serious cutworm damage next year, in grain crops.

Mr. H. L. Seaman, Dominion Entomologist, Lethbridge, has written an article stating that the infestation here is to be expected in an area enclosed within the following lines: from Coult, Alta., to MacLeod, to Calgary, to Carstairs, to Elkhart, to Consort, to Wilkie, back to Rosebush, to Langham, to Touchwood, to Grenfell, and to the international border line just west of Estevan. Within this area the infestation will be more or less severe. The worst areas of infestation are expected to be around Lethbridge, Drumheller, Kindersley, Estevan, Assiniboia, and one hundred miles radius from Regina.

Mr. Seaman draws attention to the necessity of farmers maintaining their crops in good condition, so that no implements nor stock, nor persons will cross the fields and so break the soil crust in the autumn and the first week in August and September. If fields are manured in this fashion the cutworms will not lay eggs on the crops, provided the soil is fairly crumbly.

Exactly this same warning was issued by Mr. Seaman and other Entomologists last year, and the writer on behalf of the Seaside Grain Company wrote a pamphlet entitled "Pole Worms, Cutworms" and rather fully distributed this pamphlet to farmers in western Canada.

Later the writer made two trips by car through the area that was expected to be affected by cutworms this year and made a rather minute investigation of many fields.

There is no question whatever but that the infestation came about precisely as was predicted. Not very much has been heard of cutworm damage. It is true, for the reason that in most of the areas infested by the cutworms ground has prevailed so that there has been but little crop to be damaged. Nevertheless had there been a crop, severe damage would unquestionably have been done as cutworms were present in large numbers.

The writer furthermore investigated certain fields of summerfallow and found them in accordance with the suggestions and found in almost every instance that there was practically no damage on such fields. Farmers, therefore, can feel quite confident that the carrying out of the suggestions on the managing of summerfallow as advised by the Dominion and other Entomologists will unquestionably save them severe losses next year if they are situated in the infested areas.

The Seaside Grain Company still have a number of bulletins on hand which deal with the Pole Worms, Cutworm and will gladly furnish these to any person desiring them.

BASSANO CREAMERY

DOES A RIDE THE RUMBLE

BY ETHEL HUESTON

SIXTH INSTALLMENT
Robert Motors here Rowena to accompany Peter on a nationwide tour in their roadster as an advertisement stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to set a chapter.

A few miles out Bobby becomes fearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insistently on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to. After Carter Rowena says Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by making too economically. The three travel reach Denver, after passing through Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. Peter and Rowena have many life on the way. While Carter keeps driving Bobby to return to New York. The morning after they reach Denver, Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon. Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companionate" marriage. They are married and in Cheyenne, where their actions, when they ask for rooms on separate floors, arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exiting the laughter of the hotel loungers.

Go On With The Story
Although Peter was furiously angry, highly humiliated, and blaming Rowena for everything, he was kind at heart and could not resist the plaintive pathos in her voice, usually so crisp and cool.

"Good night, Rowena," he said more pleasantly than he had any right to expect. "Don't worry. Everything'll be all right."

After a sleepless night Peter was down in the lobby at an unbelievably early hour. But early as it was, he did not precede the interested smiles and stares of the staff which had replaced the slight air—clerk, telephone operators and elevator boys.

Even at that unreasonable hour there were loungers in the lobby. And each and every one of them, and even the head waitress smiling in the door of the dining room, all about the young New Yorkers married the day before in Denver who demanded rooms on separate floors. Confusion stung his face with burning red.

He went up stairs, walked up to Rowena's room and knocked sharply. "Who?" called Rowena. "A bright voice that had obviously been schooled to register good nature in the face of adversity."

"You'll be answered shortly. Check your things into my bag and let's get out of here."

"How about breakfast?" "The hell with breakfast!" "Go. K. by me called Rowena, in the maddening voice of one who has justly enjoyed one's inner soul to smiles and sweetness. And indeed even in her sleep Rowena had been reminding herself that she must be very patient with Peter for a few days, as he was apt to be just the least bit in the world cross about the state of affairs."

Within a hour they were hurrying the dust of Cheyenne from the wheels of the roadster and as soon as the last outpost of the city lay behind in the past Peter pulled out to the side of the road and drove up to a gridding stop. Then he turned to Rowena and his was not the look of a newly married man.

"Well, you see what fools we made of ourselves," he began. "I hope you are satisfied."

"I'm terribly sorry," said Rowena humbly. "I feel just wretchedly about everything. But I couldn't possibly foresee such awful complications, now could I Peter?"

"Well, just have to make the best of it," said Peter more kindly. "This demanding separate floors that makes them give us the raspberry?" "But we can't have connecting rooms, Peter," protested Rowena unhappily. "We just can't. We have to be terribly careful about things like that or we can't get it made up. Don't you see, Peter, if we stay in adjoining rooms clear across the country, nobody in the world is going to believe we're really doing stay in adjoining rooms."

"Then we'll have to get a divorce instead of an annulment. I am not going to make a fool-out myself like that again."

"But we can't get a divorce in New York," protested Rowena. "I wrote a story about that once—know how the laws are. One of us would have to go to Reno or Paris to get it and it would take every cent of money we can save on the whole trip to pay for the divorce. And what good would that be to anybody?"

"I'll give you grounds to get it right in New York," said Peter grimly. "I'm desperate."

"That's like you, Peter," said Rowena impatiently. "Thinking only of yourself as usual. Well, don't you think for a minute that I'm going to get a divorce in New York. I'm not going to be made a fool of there before all my friends."

"What do you mean—made a fool of?" Peter demanded.

"Why, having everybody think I'm so stupid that I can't get on my husband for two months—No, it comes to that. I'll give you grounds."

"You'll what?" "Give you grounds for a divorce?" "What grounds?" "The same grounds you so magnanimously offered me."

"You are crazy? A woman can't do a thing like that. Why—it would ruin you. You're crazy!"

"Oh, am I? Well, let me tell you one thing, Mr. Peter, Blinded by love, Rowena, are you crazy? I'd rather have my friends think I stepped out on you two months after as if jealous of his boldness, rather than marriage than that I couldn't stand upon them. The car

Rowena opened the door of the car and sprang out

keep you from stepping out on me, it's much more flattering. I assure you!"

"You would, Rowena, I honestly believe you would. You're just that dumb," said Peter. "However, let's not fight over getting the divorce today. The thing to agree on now is that we've got to put up with rooms adjoining or en suite and no more about separate floors."

"If you're too proud to ask for separate floors, I'll do it," said Rowena. "I'd rather be embarrassed before a strange hotel clerk than be the laughing stock of my own friends."

"Yes that would do me a lot of good, wouldn't it?" demanded Peter. "That would certainly save my face! To have my wife sail up to the desk and register for me and ask for rooms on separate floors. Oh, yes, that would make everything fine and dandy."

"I'm not your wife," stormed Rowena.

"No, thank God."

"I'm—just happen to be married to you by accident. A—sort of detour."

"Worse luck," growled Peter. Rowena opened the door and sprang out.

"What are you going to do? Walk to Yellowstone?" "I am going," said Rowena coldly. "To retire in peace to my rumble seat."

fame futilely alone in the front.

It was about the hour of sunset when a sudden shadow blackened the west, a sudden cold breeze, touched their faces.

"They must be having showers in the mountains," said Peter. But Rowena, deep in a painful sleep of complete exhaustion, did not answer.

It was more than showers they were having in the mountains. It was cloudbursts, one after the other in torrential downpours, and in less than time it took for the cooling breeze to sweep down to the plains with refreshment for their tired faces, every dry creek bed and parched arroyo that led from the hot mountains to the burning plains was flooded with rushing water from the heights.

He guided the little roadster along the yellow mesa road toward another of the narrow rocky gorges through which they had been passing at intervals all day long. The roar in his ears grew louder, closer. Suddenly it sounded ominous and threatening. Peter looked to the west and was amazed to see a solid wall of water nearly as high as the canyon sweeping down the little canyon.

Instinctively his foot pressed the accelerator. The roaring wall of water was close but the arroyo itself was closer—a scant few feet away—and in a few minutes the on-rushing river would render it impossible for cars. The car leaped forward down the steep slope into the arroyo. But the hungry water, stepped out on you two months after as if jealous of his boldness, rather than marriage than that I couldn't stand upon them. The car swung powerless beneath his hand, slid away from the road and the river tossed it lightly down-stream and drove it securely into a crevice among the rocks.

Rowena, suddenly aroused from her exhausted sleep, had started up in terror at sight and sound of the torrential river bearing down upon them. Prompted by an innate impulse she struggled quickly up to the seat of the rumble, intending to jump, but the car was flung violently from beneath her and she floated in her insecure foothold she fell headlong, face downward, in the icy water.

Peter, stunned by the unexpected onslaught of water, was unprepared to action at sight of Rowena's helpless against the rocks by the irresistible flood.

"You little fool—what did you jump for?" he shouted, but even as he spoke he was out of his car and in her that a moment had he, firmly in his arms. Slowly he drew her back until they had the support of the car behind them against the pressure of the water.

"You didn't!" she shouted as soon as she recovered her breath. "Pull!" "Sorry!" roared Peter regretfully. "My faint! Shouldn't have tried it. No good rescue a river!"

"Cheer!" comforted Rowena loudly. "You nearly made it!"

Other cars pulled up beside the few articles on top the contents were dry. Rowena and Peter, soaking wet, hurriedly got out dry clothes—and then paused abruptly, staring at the crowd and each other with stammering breathless.

"I'll have my tent up in a jiffy," said a big red-faced Kansas farmer with loud kindness. "I'll be in the morning and I'll have to pitch camp here to-night. Give a hand there, youngster."

And before he had finished "an accident" which incidentally had caused a diminutive tent and extended its hospitality to the dripping pair.

"Key to the city, lady and gent," he said with a great laugh.

Peter made a hasty motion to Rowena who slipped quickly inside and dropped the flap.

"Your wife, I take it," said the red-faced Kansas with a puzzled air.

"Yes," said Peter. "But—the tent isn't so very big—and we're both so terribly wet—and besides, I want to have another look at the car. I don't want it carried off down the canyon."

"Don't you worry about that car, brother. That there car is put for keeps. At least till the river goes down."

Other cars pulled up and their occupants joined the enforced camp on the river bank. They put up tents and staked out claims here and there. Children were sent to gathering stones and sticks for a fireplace.

All together they ate impromptu supper on the plains, sitting in a circle about a fire. Some of the fire, and afterward as the darkness fell and the stars lit the black sky over the black prairie, they gathered closer and talked. Some sang, and the men smoked. And presently by twos or by families they crept away to their separate camps for the night.

"Here's an old mattress you can use," said the Kansas farmer, tossing it across to Peter. We've got another one. It's not very big but you're not a very big family."

The Pictures

The glamorous and fascinating Greta Garbo comes back with more lure than that of the silent days in "Fanny." Her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture, which opens tonight at the Orpheum theatre for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 13, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

If there are any adjectives left unsaid for this dynamic star the dictionary must yield now for she merits all the superlatives. Her English language permits for her superb performances. "Anna Christie" may have plumbed life deeper; "Romance" may have outdone, and in charm, but this striking new vehicle for the exotic star eclipses in dramatic appeal anything she has done, silent or sound.

Flawless Performance
As Yvonne, love-hungry favorite of the modern Paris art colony, Miss Garbo rises to heights she has never before known. There is more fire in her characterization. Her grasp is stronger, in the dramatic incidents. Her touch of pathos in that last desperate moment is brilliant. Hers is a performance without flaws.

Clarence Brown who did so well with Garbo's vocal debut as well as with some of her most successful silent films, again was responsible for the direction of her new picture. The direction is clever, and, while ingenious in mechanics, never intrudes upon the smooth fluidity of the story. The effect of climbing the spiral stairway in the opening scenes is amazing and quite unattainable to the untrained spectator.

Montgomery Ideal Lover
Robert Montgomery plays opposite the star as her provincial lover and his captivating negotiation of the romantic role should send his screen stock on sky-rocking boom. If he can go any higher than his amazing versatility has already carried him, Montgomery makes an ideal leading man for Garbo. That reliable trouper who always seems so perfectly at ease and quiet at home in Garbo's pictures, Lewis Stone, contributes another fine performance as Delval, the suave boulevardier, to whom Yvonne turns in need.

The picture of the heavy-weight championship fight between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling are coming next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Aug. 20, 21, and 22. This is a four reel feature.

"Up the River," a full length program in itself, will also be shown Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of next week. This is a story of smooth swindlers, gentle higanists, a love thief who put the "ex" in extortion, a racketeer on vacation. Shake 'em up in the cooler, and what have you?

Murphy, Edith Macente and Martin Archibald, of Brooks, accompanied by Miss Albus.

The resolutions committee, consisting of Mrs. J. Lawson, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Maurer brought in two resolutions, one re-care of convicts and children during term of imprisonment; this will receive careful consideration; the other re-education of weeds was tabled. Mrs. C. C. Reffenstein of Chancelor made a very fitting talk in behalf of the committee of thanks.

The election resulted in the re-election of Mrs. E. J. Bell of Hunsar as constituency convener, and the appointment of the following: Mrs. T. L. Montgomery, of Hunsar, secretary, and the following conveners of standing committees: agriculture, Mrs. A. Eccles, Patricia; public health and child welfare, Mrs. E. Mercer, Rosemary; education and better schools, Mrs. M. Muir, Chancellor; household economy, Mrs. E. P. Maurer, Bassano; Candidization, Mrs. F. Walker, Bassano; Immigration, Mrs. J. C. Lawson, Hunsar; legislation, Mrs. J. M. Wheatley, Chancellor; league of nations, Mrs. G. Giles, of Brooks; Canadian Industries, Mrs. R. R. Baird, Brooks; publicity, Mrs. T. L. Montgomery, Hunsar.

Anybody's Guess
Griggs: "I've never met your wife. She's a blonde, isn't she?"
Briggs: "I'm not sure. She's visiting a beautician this afternoon."
